The Humble Crumb Disguised.

Crumbs are one of the most useful and adaptable commodities in the equipment of the home housewife. To begin with, there is a well-founded sense of economy in the use of crumbs, for they are usually made from left-over bread cut but not used, crackers that have been broken, or cake no longer fresh enough for service at the table.

The use of crumbs often extends a vegetable or a small amount of meat in a way that will serve several persons deliciously as well as afford a variety to the more usual preparation. Cracker crumbs, finely rolled, may be used to thicken any soup made with milk. Browned and sprinkled over a clear soup, crumbs add to appearance and flavor.

And besides these suggestions for use as an accessory, there are a number of recipes which employ crumbs of different varieties as the basis of the dish. Crumb Omelet. Soak one-half cupful of stale bread-crumbs for fifteen minutes in one-half cupful of milk. Add four well beaten eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a hot frying-pan so that the sides as well as bottom are thoroughly greased. Pour in the egg mixture and cook slowly, shaking the pan and picking the omelet frequently, so that all is cooked.

When brown underneath, place in a 350° F. oven to finish cooking the top. Fold, cut out on a hot platter, and serve immediately, garnished with parsley. Bread Kakelets. Soak one cupful of stale bread-crumbs in one cupful of milk for fifteen minutes. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a double-boiler, add the soaked crumbs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, and one slightly beaten egg. Cook until egg thickens, stirring constantly, and remove from the fire. Add three-fourths cupful of grated cheese and heat until cheese melts. Pour on hot toast or crisp crackers and serve at once.

Crackers may be purchased especially for making into crumbs, but by saving the broken and crushed ones which are always found in boxes, a goodly supply can be accumulated. These two recipes utilize them in a most appetizing way: Griddle Cakes. Soak one cupful of cracker-crumbs in one and three-fourths cups of milk for fifteen minutes. Mix and sift one cupful bread flour, four teaspoons of baking-powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one tablespoonful of brown sugar. Add the crumb mixture, one well-beaten egg, and one tablespoonful of melted fat, stirring constantly. Bake on a hot, greased griddle until brown on both sides. A tablespoonful of molasses may be substituted for the tablespoonful of sugar, if desired.

Chocolate Frits. Melt two squares of unsweetened chocolate in two cups of milk in the double-boiler. Add one cupful of fine cracker-crumbs, one-half cupful of sugar, and one-half cupful of salt. Remove from the fire; add one beaten egg and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix thoroughly, pour, as in a pan, pour a little hot water, and bake in a 350° F. oven until firm—about forty-five minutes. Turn out on serving dishes and serve with milk, cream, or hard sauce.

The sweet crumbs from graham crackers and stale cake may be worked up into delicious dishes. Mock Pumpkin Pie. Add one-half cupful of graham cracker-crumbs to two cups of milk. Beat two eggs slightly; add one and one-eighth cups of milk, one-half cupful of ginger, one-half teaspoonful of allspice, one-half cupful of molasses, and one-half cupful of brown sugar. Combine the two mixtures and pour into a pastry-lined pie pan. Bake for ten minutes in a 350° F. oven, then reduce the heat to 325° F. and continue the baking until the center is firm—about thirty minutes. Graham Soup. Brown one-half cupful of graham cracker-crumbs in the oven. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of pepper, two and one-half cups of boiling water, and two and one-half cups of hot milk. Cook together in a double-boiler for fifteen minutes or until ready to serve.

Vacation Pudding. Soak one cupful of stale cake-crumbs for ten minutes in two cups of milk. Beat one egg, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and one-half teaspoonful of lemon flavoring. Pour into a greased pudding-dish; sprinkle the top with one-fourth teaspoonful of cinnamon. Set in a pan of warm water and bake about one hour at 350° F. Serve hot or cold.

Cake-Crumb Pudding. Soak one cupful of graham cracker-crumbs or ginger cake-crumbs in two cups of milk. Put one-half cupful of sugar in a hot frying-pan and stir constantly over a low fire until a golden-brown syrup forms. Four immediately into five small custard cups or ramekins which have been greased. Beat three eggs slightly, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and add this to the crumb and milk mixture. Pour into the cups or ramekins, set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a 350° F. oven until firm—about forty-five minutes. Chill and turn out on serving dishes.

Discoveries. Another Use for the Screw-Driver—One of the handiest tools in my kitchen is a good sized screw-driver, which I use to pry the life out of sirup and shortening cans. It is stronger than a knife, and there is no danger of cutting the fingers.

To Keep a Pillow in Place—To keep a pillow comfortably in place at the back of a sick person who is sitting up, do not merely put it behind the patient in the chair, where it will slip or fall at the first movement. Use a comfortable crocker with a rather narrow back. Let the pillow cover (which should be a loose one) slip down over the chair back. Your convalescent will be able to change position without rearranging the pillow. I know, having been a patient.

Receipts for Medicine Bottles—I have found that a round, tin coffee can makes a good receptacle in which to carry bottles of medicine when traveling. Bottles may be packed in the can and the cover put on with no danger of breaking the bottles or of the medicine leaking out on other things.

Aprons to Match Your House-Dresses—When making your dresses for morning wear, buy extra material and make up more aprons to match each dress. You will find that it looks better than an apron of contrasting color or material. When the dress requires mending, the apron, having had about the same amount of washing, will furnish perfectly matching material for needed patches. Try this and you will be well pleased with the result.

A New Hope-Chest—Instead of buying things for my hope-chest as I go along, have a savings account in a local bank, which I call my hope-chest account. When I see something I should like to have in my hope-chest, I put the amount of money required to purchase it in that account. In that way, when the time comes, my money with the interest can be used for these articles with the latest improvements. For one who is cramped for space, or who must move from place to place, this idea will be particularly helpful.

The Veteran Motorist gives a few rules of the road

"Slow down on approaching any railroad crossing. Look both ways and listen, being particularly careful where there are two or more tracks, because of trains in opposite direction." (Am. Railway Ass. Safety Section)

"I saw a smash once, and that was enough for me. No more taking chances for Yours Truly after that, or 'hoping' there isn't a train coming. You can't absolutely trust anything but your own eyes to tell you whether the track is clear or not. The flagman may not be on duty when you happen along. The automatic signal may be out of order. The train may be coasting quietly under a grade toward the crossing. There are a dozen 'may's' and 'may not's' and 'ifs'.

"No siree! Life's too short and sweet to take blind chances at grade crossings—when it's so simple and easy to make sure. My tip is: always assume there is a train coming. It is better to be wrong than to have your picture in next day's paper—"Victim of Auto Wreck."
